UNIQUE BANQUET HELD AT ROYAL WINTER FAIR

Several hundred farmers from all part of Canada were present at a banquet during the Royal Winter Fair held in Toronto recently at which every item on the menu was the product of, or nearly all of them, farm products.

There were oysters from Prince Edward Island, and the shell fish from there are incomparable. Alberta provided the sugar, produced from sugar beets grown at Raymond near Lethbridge. British Columbia sent celery and fruits, and Ontario also provided fruits and other edibles. The bread was made from flour from Saskatchewan wheat. The turkeys came from Manitoba and cranberries from the accompanying source were New Brunswick's contribution.

Neither ice nor coffee was served at this banquet, the beverages being limited to apple cider from Nova Scotia, grape juice from Ontario, and Canadian-made ginger ale. The cauliflower came from Quebec, potatoes from New Brunswick and the pumpkin pie from Ontario. The Canadian Government Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, supplied the cheese, and Ontario and British Columbia furnished the nuts.

Although Canada is a great exporter of food products, she imports large quantities of foodstuffs, particularly seasonal fruits and vegetables, much of which come from the United States.

This All-Canadian banquet a feature of the Royal Winter Fair, is just a little demonstration that Canada can feed herself if necessary and suffer little, if any, from lack of variety or quality.—Canada Week by Week.

ENJOY YOUR HOCKEY GAME

A few changes in the rules this year make the game faster, cleaner, and more interesting to the spectators. This year the puck may be kicked by a player any place on the ice, except into the goal.

The new forward pass permits the player to forward pass in any zone on the ice. The puck can be passed across the player's own blue line but cannot be touched by a player of the same side, who was in the centre zone at the time the pass was made. However, if the player crosses his blue line, then passes up to one of his own players the pass is perfectly legitimate. Again, a player coming across his own blue line after the pass has been made, may take the puck. Entering the opponent's zone, the puck must be first across the blue line. This is very important. But after it has crossed the blue line a forward pass may be made to any position in this zone.

The body check, for potential receivers of the puck, has been eliminated this year. The man in possession of the puck is the only player who may be body checked.

Players in front of the goal, waiting for a forward pass or a pass from the corner, cannot be interfered with. This also applies to the goal tender. When the goal tender has possession of the puck, between his feet, in his hand, or even if he has fallen on it, no one is allowed to touch him.

Watching for infringements of these rules makes every spectator a first class referee.

Have you seen the newest waste baskets? They are metal, are very decorative and easy to make. As a base, you must get a metal—wood or even cardboard shapes can be used if necessary—of the desired size and shape without a handle. I like one that stands about sixteen inches high and is oval at top and bottom, but you may fancy something different.

Then paint it inside and out. If you are making it for a special room you can carry out the color scheme in the tinting. When the paint has dried thoroughly—(one coat is usually enough)—glue a picture, preferably a Godey print, if you are fortunate enough to possess one that you are willing to use, or a picture of that nature, on one side of the vessel and allow it to dry.

When perfectly dry coat the pall with a colorless white, I believe it is called varnish and let harden. The waste basket is then complete with the exception of the handles which are pretty but not essential. Tassels are the best for this purpose and may be found in almost any color. One should be glued firmly at either end about an inch or two from the top.

The finished product is lovely and makes a dainty as well as useful gift.

RECIPES

Cranberry Sauce
Cover the cranberries with water and cook until the berries are broken. Remove from fire, mix in sugar to taste; pour into dish and serve either hot or cold.

Waldorf Salad
6 apples
1 cupful of chopped walnuts
1 cupful of chopped celery
Boiled salad dressing
Peel, core and dice apples; add nuts and celery; mix with salad dressing; serve on lettuce leaves. This will serve six or eight people.

Assorted Cookies
1/2 cupful of butter
1 cupful of sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons of milk
1/2 teaspoon of lemon extract
2 1/2 cupfuls of flour
2 teaspoons of baking powder
2 1/2 teaspoonful of grated nutmeg
1/4 teaspoonful of salt

Cream butter, add sugar, eggs, well beaten, milk and lemon extract. Mix and sift ingredients and add to first mixture. Chill thoroughly. Roll small pieces of dough at a time, as thin as paper. Cut in shape desired and bake 8 minutes in a moderate oven.

Sand tarts—sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar before cutting out.

Caraway cookies—put 1/4 teaspoonful of caraway seeds in part of mixture before chilling.

Orange cookies—grate peel of 1 orange and add to part of dough when rolling.

Jelly cookies—use round cutter and place piece of crabapple jelly in center of cookies before baking.—Copyright.

CONSERVATIVES TO MEET IN EDMONTON

It has been announced that the provincial Conservative convention will be held in Edmonton before the next session of the legislature. It was intimated that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett would arrive in Calgary early in January and the dates of the convention will be set to coincide with his visit. Mr. Duggan, leader from other western provinces will in all probability take part in the convention it was stated.

COMMON COLDS

(By Dr. William J. Scholes)
The direct and exciting cause of acute colds is very likely always an infection. The indirect and predisposing cause is in all cases a chilling of some part of the surface of the body.

Given these two factors their mode of action is somewhat as follows: When a part of the surface of the body is chilled by exposure to violent cold, to winds and drafts, or to dampness, the vessels in that area become contracted with the result that those of deeper structure become congested.

How Chilling Causes Colds

There is a close relationship between the circulation of blood in the skin which covers the body and the mucous membranes which line structures inside the body. Thus, when the vessels in the skin are contracted and contain less blood, those in the mucous membranes are dilated and contain more blood. Hence, if the vessels of the skin are contracted as a result of exposure to a draft of cold air, those in the mucous membranes are proportionately dilated. In other words, the blood squeezed out of one part has to find room in another section.

For example: If the feet become wet and chilled a considerable volume of blood is affected because the feet have a very large skin area compared to their bulk. The blood that normally traverses the vessels of the feet now engorges the vessels of the mucous membranes. There is congestion of these membranes and from this it is only a step to inflammation when the membranes are irritated. The circulation is now slowed up and the ever-present germs gain a firm foothold.

The reason it is the upper air passages which suffer the greatest from this circulatory upset is twofold:

First, they harbor germs at all times; second, they are more prone to irritation.

The condition might, however, develop in any part of the body which is especially susceptible at the time. Thus, exposure to cold might in one individual lead to gastritis, in another to bowel trouble, in a third to bladder trouble.

Under normal circumstances the little glands in the mucous membranes secrete a fluid in just sufficient amount to keep the surface moist. This activity on their part is in direct relation to their blood supply. If the blood in a part increases, these glands become more active and an excessive secretion is manufactured. Which explains why the nose "runs" when one has a "cold in the head."

Guard Your Sneezes

Every person with a cold should cough and sneeze into a handkerchief. Infection is direct—from person to person. The man with a cold who sneezes into the atmosphere throws a spray fifteen feet and any one within that radius inhales some of the droplets in the air. Bacteria that reach the sidewalk or pavement do little if any harm. Germs do not rest for a while on the sidewalk on Main street and jump up into your nose as you walk by.—Copyright.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

(Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe)

There has been a slight misunderstanding in connection with these News Letters. These are to be forwarded to the daily and weekly newspapers only; because of the expense involved and the lack of the necessary facilities we cannot undertake to forward copies of these letters to individuals requesting them.

Alternative Laying Mash
As an alternative to the laying mash recommended last week, the following mixture may be fed. Many farmers will prefer this mash, as ground wheat takes the place of the bran and shorts called for in last week's mash:

Ground wheat 100 lbs.
Ground barley (hulls sifted out) 100 lbs.
Ground oats (hulls sifted out) 100 lbs.
Meat scraps 70 lbs.
Bone Meal 12 lbs.
Linseed Meal 12 lbs.
Alfalfa Meal 15 lbs.
Cod Liver Oil 6 pints

Mineral Mixture for Swine
At all times in the year, but especially during the winter months, when they do not have access to the soil, pigs should be supplied with a mineral mixture to make up for the deficiency of minerals in the meal ration. A simple mineral mixture which is used with very satisfactory results at this Station is made up as follows:

76 lbs. slaked coal
20 lbs. common salt
3 lbs. slaked lime or ground limestone
1 lb. sulphur.

This mixture is placed in a box or separate compartment of the self-feeder, where the pigs have free access to it at all times.

Losses From Rejected Wool
Rejected wool causes serious losses to sheep raisers throughout the country. It has been estimated that eight to ten percent of the wool marketed each year has to be rejected because of being seedy, burry, and full of objectionable material. Properly constructed feeding racks help solve this problem, by keeping chaff and other foreign material out of the wool. Feed racks for sheep should be built with the sides perpendicular, so that hay and chaff will not fall on

COW-TESTING ASSOCIATION HOLDS 10TH ANNUAL MEET

Millet, Dec. 20.—There was an attendance of 12 members at the annual meeting of the cow testing association on Saturday. This body 10 years organized, has a roll of 22 active members whose herds are under test for production. H. E. Fulcher was chairman and A. E. Dowdell is secretary.

H. E. Young informed the meeting that in view of the press story from Ottawa that the federal department of agriculture was discontinuing the work in Alberta December 31, he had called Hon. George Hoadley on the phone. He told the meeting he had been informed that all six provinces, where the work was done by the dominion, had united in replying they were unable to take over.

One meeting expressed hopes a way out would be found but discussed plans to carry on as a group if that failed.

BLOWS INTO TOWN

High winds sometimes sweep the highways in the Staveland district, and dust clouds swirl about, stalling automobiles when ignition points become blocked. But Frelan Wilford, former world's wheat king, has solved the problem.

Bound for a lodge meeting his car stalled. A companion, Harold Gates, held a door of the car open and the wind sailed it into town, a distance of four miles, at a speed of 15 miles per hour. And at that, the brakes had to be applied when vision was obstructed by dust.

FIVE MERCHANTS FORGER'S VICTIMS

Provost, Dec. 19. — Five Provost merchants were the victims late Saturday night of forgery, when they cashed five stolen grain tickets all made out for the exact sum of $34.42.

The tickets were stolen on of the cash ticket book of N. Ineson, U.G.G. Elevator company's buyer at Hayer, who had left for home, his name being forged and made out to one Thompson. In each instance merchandise was purchased with each grain ticket and the balance taken in cash.

Two men worked together, one being an elderly man and the other young.

We Need Money! We Must Have Money! We Want OUR Money!

[THUS DO OUR CREDITORS SPEAK TO US. They demand money in chunks. There is nothing left for us to do but respectfully say to our debtors: Please, will you give us some money in nibbles?

LISTEN! Here's the story—Our subscribers owe us several thousand for past due services. It is divided among some fifteen hundred delinquents. The others are paid up. The amount owed us is not serious in any one case. The average is around four dollars. Not much for each one. In the aggregate, however, it is a great sum for us. We are compelled to ask for it. We need money—WE MUST HAVE MONEY—WE WANT OUR MONEY!

DEAR SUBSCRIBER:

With each copy of THE WETASKIWIN TIMES that has gone to you, the label carried a statement of your account. If for instance the label reads "Dec. '32" it means that you owe us $2.00. If it reads "Dec. 31" the bill is $4.00, etc.

If we had these two's and four's, etc., it would mean a great deal to us. What about it?

To those who are paid up for 1933, this is the season of good will, and the one in which to send us Two Dollars for 1934. Can't you?

Respectfully submitted,

SEASON'S TRADE BEST SINCE '29

Montreal, Dec. 27.—Business has been good in Canada this Christmas—amazingly good, from coast to coast in comparison with that of last year. Retailers, for the most part, still are engaged in analyzing the details of their Christmas trade, and the results as they emerge are not merely gratifying but surprising. For some of them this has been quite the best December since 1929. For all it seems to have brought a striking increase over last Christmas in volume of sales. This increase has been estimated by individual concerns all the way from 12 per cent to 35 per cent. It ranges over everything from the jewelry trade to the mail order business and from Vancouver to the maritimes. Notwithstanding this year's adverse crop conditions it includes the prairie provinces.

Edmonton, Dec. 26.—Police tonight were completing their investigation into two slayings during the Christmas week-end, those of John Bernatchy, allegedly stabbed by Joseph R. Denar, Hindu, and Fred Pasty, said to have been stunned and stabbed by his ex-wife, Mrs. Lillian Pasty.

It is reported from Ottawa that parliament will be summoned for Jan. 25. This will be the fifth session of the 17th parliament since confederation. The central bank is forecast as the outstanding feature of the coming session, but there are several other problems to be solved.

Calgary, Dec. 21.—Calgary Liberals by acclamation, nominated W. Harry Ross to contest the by-election in Calgary on January 15, for the legislative seat vacated by the death of George H. Webster.

This is a courtesy much appreciated by The Times and should ensure a series of appetizing breakfasts.

Last week was very unfortunate for the teachers and children putting on Christmas entertainments. After weeks of preparation, they were obliged to present their charming little concerts under most discouraging conditions. The nights were far too cold for cars and too cold for horses to stand out, a fact which reacts against attendance. There is great sympathy for the little folk and their teachers who would under normal conditions have been rewarded for their efforts by crowded houses.

The local power plant has been out of commission off and on for the past week or so, and on Wednesday a cracked cylinder head put a final to the service. The High School party on Dec. 22 in the Elks' Hall was again a very enjoyable affair, in spite of the fact that the number of parents present was a bit disappointing.

All the students seemed to feel the freedom that was rightly theirs because of the close of school work, and the festive spirit of the season was quite in evidence, and dancing was of course the main feature of the program.

your calendar

How many days in the month do you feel your best? You can add to these sunshine days by simply obeying nature's laws.

The first of these laws is regular elimination. Avoid common constipation by eating a delicious cereal.

Tests show Kellogg's All-Brans furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help aid regularity. All-Brans also contains twice the iron of an equal weight of beef liver.

The "bulk" in All-Brans is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much more pleasant than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Directions on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Was So Short of Breath Could Not Lie Down to Sleep

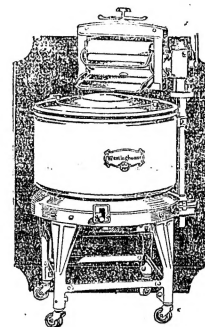

Mrs. P. J. Chernoff, Shoreacres, B.C., writes:—"I had been so troubled with shortness of breath I could not lie down to sleep. I could not do any hard work, or climb the stairs, and had such nervous and smothering feelings I became very weak. I tried all kinds of medicine, but got no relief until I had taken three boxes of Milburn's H. & N. Pills, and since then I have felt better in every way." JUST AS GOOD!

Ask Yourself—Is It?

When you ask for a certain line of goods, a line which you have seen advertised in newspapers—and you are told "Here is something just as good and cheaper," it is time to do some thinking. If there is more profit in selling goods not advertised and you are buying at a saving, there must be something wrong somewhere—and usually that is loss of quality—something left out that is THERE in the advertised commodity you originally asked for.

It is well to remember that a manufacturer invests his good dollars in advertising space because he knows his product is right. The fact that he advertises in newspapers so that "he who runs may read" is evidence that he knows his claims are right, and that he is ready to stand behind his merchandise and the stores that sell it.

From the Toe of a Stocking

Mary Lewiston looked over the class room and tried to smile. The little faces which were turned to her were so expectant as if hope lay in her, as if she might make things different for them, just as she, herself, looked hopefully toward her superiors.

And so she said brightly, although her heart was wrapped in gloom, "Let us turn to page one hundred and twenty in our song books and sing."

The song was about spring and birds and sunshine, and the little voices broke into the melody so eagerly that Mary thought maybe after all they did forget the chill and darkness of the day. Then as their voices died, and they closed their books, another sound came from the cloakroom. It was a small, muffled sound, but Mary recognized it instantly as a sob.

"Get busy on your morning work, children," she said to the class, and then she vanished into the cloak room where Carlene McKenzie, with tears streaming down her cheeks, was huddled on one foot beside the radiator.

"Carlene, child, what's the matter?" asked Mary, but before she little girl could answer, Mary saw five bare, red, shivering toes sticking through a toothless shoe.

"It's all I got," sobbed Carlene. "Don't you cry," soothed Mary. "Maybe I can figure out a way to find you some. I'll draw a chair for the radiator in the room, and you can study there."

Shoes were so cheap. Mary had seen some that very morning, advertised for a dollar. But where was the dollar? That was the problem, the problem so many faced but could not solve.

Her thoughts strayed to a certain young man, Boyd Bartholomew, a cousin young man whom she had stopped seeing lately because their hopes and plans had gone to pieces so disastrously for lack of dollars.

But somehow Mary knew that Carlene must have a pair of shoes before the day was over, and then Mary thought of the stocking Aunt Lavern had given her on Christmas. For a present it had been a keen disappointment from an old lady who was as queer as she was rich.

Aunt Lavern had said, "There's a silver dollar in the toe of this stocking, and there's some paper stuffed on top of it to keep it in place, but the stockings not to be opened until you need the dollar badly. Understand?"

Mary, watching the five little bare toes, was convinced that she needed that dollar now.

At noon, she said to Carlene, "Stay here in the warm building. I am going to get you something."

Then Mary raced to her small apartment which was only a short distance away from the school. Out of his hiding place she dug the stocking, then untied the ribbon at the top, which imprisoned the contents. Paper was crumpled in the upper part, but before she reached the silver dollar in the toe, she drew a small envelope from the cavity. On the envelope was written her name.

Curiously she slit the missive and drew forth the contents. Then Mary's fingers trembled as they had never trembled before, and she read and re-read a statement from Aunt Lavern that a sum of $5,000 awaited Mary Lewiston whenever that young lady wanted to take charge of it. Mary could not believe the message.

Yet there it was in black and white. And in the toe of the stocking where Aunt Lavern had said it was, was the silver dollar.

Mary glanced at her wrist watch, clasped the dollar in her purse, hurried out of the apartment and ran full tilt against Boyd Bartholomew, whose beaming countenance foretold unexpected news.

"Sweetheart," he gasped, "I've found a good job at last. We can be married, but we'll have to wait for the bungalow."

"No, we shall not," sang Mary. "Did you know that bungalows sometimes grow out of the toes of stockings? Well, drive me to the stocking store, Boyd, and I'll explain."

$375,000 BUSINESS BY U.F.A. "CO-OPS"

Edmonton, Dec. 21.—Ten principal commodities bought and used by farmers dealing with the U.F.A. co-operatives showed a combined turnover of about $371,000 during the past year it was reported at the annual meeting of these organizations, which continued its sittings Wednesday.

Among the items included in the list were fuel and lubricating oil, coal, binder twine, British Columbia fruit, flour, automobile tires and batteries, poultry supplies, grass seed, gopher poison and salt. The aggregate volume of business in these and other commodities by the total 21 associations in the province is not yet compiled as the fiscal years of the co-operatives do not in all cases coincide.

The largest single organization's turnover was that of the Acadia society, which reported a $64,000 volume of business. Five others had maximum amounts of more than $30,000 each.

A large part of the time of the meeting has been taken up with reviews of the year's trade and consideration of business conditions. Expansion to the co-operative idea, through the organization of new societies, is also being considered. There is an attendance of 19 delegates representing 12 of the co-operatives in various parts of the province.

SUIT FOLLOWING FATAL BUS ACCIDENT

Suit was started in the supreme court at Calgary last Thursday against the Greyhound Lines, Ltd., owners of the bus involved in the fatal accident at High River in October. The suit is brought by Arthur Wilkinson, author of Miss Lois Wilkinson, who was killed in the accident, as administrator of her estate, and asks for $10,000 against the company, and $356 special damages to cover medical and funeral expenses.

THE FESTIVE BIRD

Tradition has it that the first turkey was brought to England by one of Sebastian Cabot's chief lieutenants. This is supported by the fact that William Strickland, who accompanied Cabot on several of his voyages, adopted a turkey rampant as his crest on being granted arms in 1551.

At any rate the popularity of the turkey as the principal item in the Christmas dinner menu has lasted well over 300 years.

But if you think that the little "turkey" has anything to do with the country of that name you are mistaken. He bird is a native of North America, where it was discovered by the early Spanish navigators.

Exactly how it got its name is a mystery.

Advertising — The "Mother" of Prosperity and Progress
"Mother's work is never done," goes the old saying. And so it is with advertising. Under today's competitive conditions, it must be used continually in behalf of a business, if that business is to prosper and grow. — J. K. Arnold's "Note Book."

"And another thing—these days the early bird gets his own breakfast!"

THE SELL

"Sure, business may be rotten, but this is my big day. I admit you have to be smart to sell anything these days, but I always say if you just use your head, there's always a way. Well, here we are, J. G. Atkins may not know it, but he's going to buy a little insurance today." Eddie and Mr. Bock stopped in front of the Atkins general store.

"You don't mean you're going to try to sell old man Atkins anything?"

"Ha, ha! Yes, sure I am. I'm selling him the insurance I peddle." "Then you're greener about this town than I thought, Eddie, old man. Listen and let me give you a tip. There are some people in this town that can be sold my line and your line, and some other lines, maybe. But old man Atkins isn't one of them. Every salesman that hits this town eventually works on him, but I've never known any one if them to sell him anything."

"You ought to read up a little, Bock. Now, take that story about Achilles and his heel. Ever read it? It seems this fellow Achilles was fool-proof to bullets and arrows and stones, except on one corner of his heel. His vulnerable spot, they called it. Well, some guy who was out to get him catches on to this. And what does he do? Why, he aims at his heel. Get it?"

"Maybe you have got something new. Don't know as I've heard of anybody aiming at old man Atkins's heel. But I warn you. His hide's thick."

"Ha, ha! That's what you think. Well, sure it is. But, you see, Atkins has a vulnerable spot. It's ornithology."

"It's what?"
"Ornithology. Now, I'll tell you. Old man Atkins may have the best sales resistance in this town, but he's a nut about ornithology. I found that out at the hotel the other night. And where was I last night? Right around the corner to the public library. I got me a book on ornithology and read it. And, say, there's something kind of interesting about that stuff. I never looked at birds just that way before."

"And so you think you're ready for the toughest bird in town, do you?"

"Sure, I go for those tough guys. I find out what they're interested in and then I study up on it. Now when I get to talking to Atkins about birds he'll forget I'm selling insurance and he'll be signing on the dotted line before he knows it."

"Well, Eddie, I'm not saying that anybody that studies up on ornithology is dumb, but I'm willing to bet a new hat that Atkins doesn't bite on your hook even if it is baited with birds."

"Say, I'll just take that up, Bock. Just shows what you don't know about ornithology. I'll tell you about that book I was reading some day. But here, why don't you just wait for me over on the corner there? You're just loafing, anyway. This isn't going to take long. And I'll meet you just as soon as I sign up Atkins. Okay?"

"Okay."
The clock hanging over the street corner changed to the quarter-hour. At that, Eddie was sticking with Atkins a little longer than the average salesman, mentally admitted Bock. But more than likely he was just standing by while Atkins waited on a customer.

A raucous chime tolled the half-hour. That was pretty long for Atkins to be waiting on a customer. Maybe he and Eddie had got to the subject of birds. Well, he'd give him five more minutes at the most now. A quarter to the next hour. A terrific waste of time. Bock wished he'd gone over to the hotel and sat down. Imagine anybody wasting this much time trying to sell Atkins anything. The hour struck. Well, might as well wait now. He'd just as soon get that hat right away. Don't suppose Eddie could have gone out the back door? Might have. He'd sure feel cheap not to sell Atkins. Wait. Eddie was coming.

The insurance salesman came out the door of the Atkins general store and crossed the street to rejoin his companion. He looked excessively pleased. Bock didn't miss that and he marvelled. "Then you did sell him?" he asked.

Eddie, still hugely pleased, looked at him with surprise. "Sell him? Oh, he didn't want any insurance. But look what I bought from him."

Now! Ease Sore Throat Instantly!

Remember: Only Medicine Helps Sore Throat

Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes!

It requires medicine—like ASPIRIN—to do these things! That is why throat specialists throughout the world are prescribing this ASPIRIN gargle in place of old-time ways.

Be careful, however, that you get Aspirin Tablets for this purpose.

WHERE MILLIONS ARE WASTED

American people annually spend $125,000,000 for knowledge which can be procured free by simply going to the nearest public library.

Small-town residents read twice as many books as their city cousins. Men are more serious readers than women.

These were among the reports on the literary habits of the public made recently at the annual convention of the American Library Association at Chicago.

New York was cited as the most wasteful city so far as spending money on astroligical information goes. Robert Hopkirk, of New York, quoted figures to show that $25,000,000 is spent there for that purpose yearly adding:

"People in need of help to determine what is the right occupation for them do not know that the libraries have this information."

"I Keep Prayed Up"

Two parsons (so the story goes) attending a Conference, had beds in the same room.

One was a YOUNG man---the other was OLD.

They began their devotions simultaneously but the older man was off his knees and into bed in a twinkling.

The younger man's prayer was long. When he rose, he felt called on to chide the older man for the brevity of his prayer.

The old man's reply was both blunt and rebuking:

"I keep prayed up, young man, I keep prayed up."

THERE'S A POINT IN THIS STORY for those who employ advertising to sell their goods and service. It is, Keep continual contact, by the agency of published advertising, with those from whom you want business.

Many sellers lapse into long periods of silence. Then, when business is bad they may burst into advertising, hoping that there will be immediate and earnest attention on the part of those addressed.

Buyers are attentive and responsive to those who maintain steady contact with them—via published advertising. To them they are friendly. When in the market for what the seller offers, to him they turn easily, expectantly, confidently and responsively.

The advertising which costs least—because of a minimum of buyer resistance and a maximum of goodwill and responsiveness—is that which is published continuously. Contrariwise, the advertising which costs most is that which bursts into sight suddenly and intermittently—like the fires of Vesuvius. It costs most because it doesn't get the required response, in the time limit set.

There's Another Little Story About Prayer---a story with a point:

A small boy told his Sunday School teacher that he never said his prayers in the morning, but always at night. "And why not in the morning?" asked the teacher. "Why," said the small boy, "any fellow who's any good can look after himself in the day time."

Many sellers are very much like this small boy; many are worse. Many advertise only when darkness begins to fall over their business. Many don't advertise at all.

The right idea is, of course, to keep on distributing among buyers information about one's goods and wants—at all times. Thus do the leaders.

Silence signifies SELLER-INDIFFERENCE.

Buyers, in greatest numbers, go where they are INVITED to go!

DEFER CHOICE CANDIDATE

Ponoka, Dec. 22—Liberal association here has re-organized with J. W.

O'Brien, Jr., president and Dr. W.

Campbell honorary president. Choosing of a candidate for Ponoka provincial constituency was delayed due to poor turnout at meeting because of bad roads. L. S. Cutler of Rimby was named vice-president and H. S.

Stewart, secretary-treasurer.
